E/M Wave Tariff and Invoicing Policy
Reference IEEPA Refund Status

May 12, 2026

U.S. Customs and Border Protection (CBP) has recently initiated the Consolidated Administration and Processing of Entries (CAPE) process, to begin receiving claims for tariffs paid within the International Emergency Economic Powers Act (IEEPA).

E/M Wave is currently working through this process, pursuing the necessary steps to file refund claims for tariffs paid under IEEPA, which was in effect until February 24, 2026. For this new and uncharted process, there are many unknowns precluding us from projecting the process timeline and refund amounts at this very early stage.

We want to assure our valued customers that E/M Wave is committed to pursuing these claims and will communicate all pertinent information regarding refunds and timeline, as soon as information and confirmations are received from the U.S. CBP.

Lastly, please be reminded that E/M Wave continues to absorb much of the pre-existing and standard regulatory tariffs within our overhead cost structure. We, along-side our domestic and international trade partners, continue to experience imposed tariffs per the Presidential Proclamation. "Imposing a Temporary Import Surcharge to Address Fundamental International Payment Problems", effective February 24th, 2026. For this reason, all applicable tariffs will continue to be passed through our invoicing process, where applicable.

Our founding and ongoing commitment to quality, honesty, and integrity ensures that any tariffs resulting from the revised tariff policy will not be a profitable component of our business. E/M Wave will only invoice tariffs as they are applied to imported components. Tariffs will not be applied to pre-existing, non-tariffed inventory or components and product sourced and/or manufactured in the US.

If you have any questions regarding this policy or require clarification of invoiced tariffs, please contact your E/M sales representative for support. We appreciate your patience and understanding as we navigate this uncharted journey together within an ever-changing world.

Thank you,

E/M Wave Management Team
